ABSTRACT

A cheat detection facility is provided in which integrity challenges are issued to a game participant seeking to ensure that the participant is not running any patches or other executable code to augment his performance in the game. The player cannot participate further in the game if an integrity check is failed.